

International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA)

Practical Arrangements Agreement

Malia Zaman

Program Manager

9 November 2016

Practical Arrangements Agreement

- Signed 29 September 2016
- “IAEA's signing of the Practical Arrangement agreement with IEEE is the first the agency has made with an international standards development organization and has initially been established for three years. The letter of intent sets the framework for potential cooperation between IAEA and IEEE in areas of mutual interest to identify opportunities with the goal of furthering both organizations' missions.” – IEEE-SA Press Release, 3 November 2016

About the Practical Arrangements

- Potential areas of cooperation
 - Exchange of information in areas of mutual interest
 - May promote each other's events to their own constituencies
 - May exchange of information on their specific standards and supporting technical document development activities on a biannual basis
 - May identify and link leaders/stakeholders/technical experts with each others' organizations for the purposes of sharing experiences and best practices in the area of nuclear safety and energy and encouraging active participation
 - May cooperate in the development of each other's publications on topics of mutual interest
- Jodi Haasz is the point of contact for IEEE
- Additional Information on IAEA can be found at <http://www.iaea.org/>