The former coach house of the Princely Palace St. Emmeram shines since it opened in July 2005 in new splendor. Middle of the guest room - the brew kettle, where every week brewed onsite bright, dark and wheat.

Previously, the building served as the royal stables of the royal family. Here stood the great coaches. Now, the rooms were renovated architektonisch sent and there was a cozy brewery atmosphere. Dark wood paneling provides comfort that work by the light that give the large semicircular window of the room but never gloomy, but bright and fresh. In the center of the common room are two shiny copper kettle the best evidence that is actually brewed here.
